

Creative coalition

CREATIVE company KOJO is starting a new film and television production arm, joining forces with Hedone Productions.

Hedone's existing projects will move over to KOJO and the company's producer, Kate Croser, will be the new head of production and development.

Fellow Hedone principal Sandy Cameron is also moving over to KOJO to continue producing and also work as a freelance screenwriter.

Kate Butler, who has spent the past 10 years leading KOJO's post production business, will join Kate Croser as production and development executive.