

Leaders in food to drive industry change

Four high profile food industry professionals from Food South Australia member companies are destined to play major roles in South Australia's burgeoning gourmet food industry after being awarded Industry Leaders Fund study grants.

Congratulations to Daniel Platten of Wintulichs, who has received funding to attend a New Leaders Development Program at Melbourne Business School, Nicholas Femia of SA Mushrooms, who will use his grant to support his participation in the Harvard Business School's Owner President Manager program in the US, Chantale Millard from Maggie Beer Products, who is headed for Switzerland to attend the Driving Strategic Innovation Program at IMD Business School in Lausanne, and Phil Sims of Robern Menz, who will be attending the SAID Business School's Advanced Leadership Program in Oxford, England. The Industry Leaders Fund has awarded grants totalling $1.528 million since 2010 and provides a platform for the state's pacesetting business entrepreneurs to fast track their careers through the knowledge and experience gained from their educational opportunities.
