TWENTY-THREE-carat gold on cheese anyone? Adelaide Hills cheesemaker Kris Lloyd is set to unveil her latest premium offering at this week's ANZ Community Market.

The founder of Woodside Cheese Wrights will showcase her Golden Blossom goats cheese, made using wattle blossoms, which comes with its own vial of honey to drizzle on — and a real gold leaf on the top.

"I'm very excited to be a part of the market. It's a great opportunity for us to reach out to a completely different demographic of customers," she said.

"It's also perfectly timed because our Golden Blossom cheese, made in collaboration with Orana chef Jock Zonfrillo, is ready to debut.

"The cheese is completely different from anything anyone else is doing in the world."

Golden Blossom will retail at $25 for 120g at the market, organised by ANZ Bank's SA branch.

State general manager Brendan Rinaldi said he had successfully introduced a similar concept in Victoria.

"It's just a fun way to get our staff and the community in to connect with some of the businesses in SA, including ones we work with," he said.

"We got great feedback from staff and customers in Victoria and, this year, a marketplace is being held in all capital cities (except Darwin).

"It is now turning into other initiatives such as supporting charities like Foodbank."

Besides Woodside Cheese, 14 other stallholders will be at the market from 10.30am-2.30pm on the rear courtyard of ANZ's SA headquarters at 11 Waymouth St.

These include brewer Lo-bethal Bierhaus, growers Harvest the Fleurieu, Kimbolton Wines, Barossa Distilling Company, Red Cacao Chocolatier, PISA bakery, Hahndorf Meats, Kangaroo Island Olives, ice cream maker Golden North, and other operators.

Outdoor trainers Step Into Life will hold sessions throughout the day at the market.

Mr Rinaldi said the bank was also promoting "Youth in the Community" through the Sacred Heart Middle School band which will perform from noon and 1.30pm.

This year, marketplaces are also being linked to charities. In Adelaide, the market will sell 10kg bags of rice for $20 as a donation back to Foodbank.

Foodbank will get the rice and $5 cash proceeds from the purchase.
