Corporate Ladder: your weekly guide to executive appointments

Local software start-up names Chief of Staff

After a decade in early-stage tech business interstate and overseas, Ben Colley has been named inaugural Chief of Staff for South Australian software firm Teamgage.

His most recent role was with Melbourne-based research and development company Bluedot, where he helped lead the customer experience arm of the business.

Teamgage said Colley's appointment came on the back of company expansion and development of its leadership team.

"Ben, in this new role, will be critical in helping the company deliver its strategic plan and continued growth," a spokesperson said.
