Testing for global food and beverage sectors

South Australian-based Australian Wine Research Institute (AWRI) and United Kingdom food and beverage services organisation Campden BRI will collaborate on providing food and beverage testing services.

Affinity Labs, the AWRI's commercial arm, will focus on exploring new options for shelf-life testing that comply with EU and US standards.

Campden BRI will initially explore the introduction of new wine testing services in the UK, similar to those already offered by Affinity Labs in Australia.
